Appendix A

Contract Review Checklist

These guidelines are intended to support signatories in reviewing contracts, so they know what you are signing before signing. It is also good practice to periodically review existing contracts such as photography, yearbook and other agreements to determine whether they still meet your needs.

This contract review checklist provides a limited list of general provisions to consider.

In its most basic form, a contract is merely an agreement between two or more people to do or not do a particular thing. That sounds simple enough, but when those obligations are buried in the fine print in the middle of a lengthy document it may not be so easy to understand exactly what the parties are agreeing to do or not do. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact a member of the Purchasing team.

So, what should you look for when reviewing a contract? Here are a few suggestions:

1. Negotiate the Terms

When presented with a contract, remember that this is a starting point. You can negotiate the terms of nearly every agreement. You want to make the deal happen, but so does the other person. Ask for what you want. The worst that can happen is they say "no."

2. Identify the Parties

Correctly identify the parties. Use the complete name of the business to avoid confusion. Use Grand Erie District School Board c/o "School Name" on all agreement for insurance purposes

3. Complete all Blanks

Complete all blanks on any pre-printed form because items left blank can be filled in later by someone else. Be sure all changes or deletions are initialled.

4. Check the Business Terms

Double check the business terms of the contract (price, amount, duration, square footage, etc.) to determine whether it accurately reflects the agreement of the parties. Please remember that Board policy prohibits contracts longer than five years. Typical Board contracts are three years with two one-year Board options dependent on vendor performance. Also check the legal jurisdiction of the contract. Only sign contracts where Ontario law is the jurisdiction. If this is non-negotiable, please refer the agreements to Supply and Administrative Services for review.

5. Automatic Renewals

Look for automatic renewals. Do you have to give notice if you do not want to renew? Are there penalties if notice is not timely given? Is renewal on the same terms as the original agreement? Are there price increases? Consider adding options to renew on favourable terms. Whenever possible remove automatic renewals. Board policy does not allow contracts to exceed 5 years.

6. Allocating Risk

Determine how risk is to be allocated. Risk is typically borne by the party in the best position to prevent loss. However, there may be reasons for a different allocation. Check insurance requirements. If an insurance certificate is required, please send the request to Executive Assistant to the Superintendent of Business.

7. Harmless and Indemnification Provisions

Check hold harmless and indemnification provisions. When you agree to hold someone harmless you are agreeing to not hold them responsible for liability that may arise out of the transaction. When you indemnify someone, you are agreeing to protect them from liability or loss that may arise out of the transaction. If you must indemnify the other party, limit the indemnification as much as possible. Negotiate the same indemnification for yourself. For instance, if you, as buyer, agree to indemnify the seller of a business for losses they may incur as a result of actions after the sale, then they should indemnify you for losses you may incur as a result of actions before the sale.

8. Incorporated Documents

When another document is incorporated by reference always read the incorporated document. Don't assume you know what it contains.

9. Events of Default

Determine what acts constitute events of default and whether you are able to enter into and perform under the contract without causing a default. Also consider what should be included as events of default by the other party.

10. Remedies Provisions

Review remedies provisions. Determine the worst that can happen to you if you default. Explore ways to limit your liability. Also determine what types of remedies you need in the event of default by the other party.

11. Causes for Termination

Review causes for termination. Consider including ways to terminate the contract if it is not working to your benefit. This would include a "Funding out Clause" for example where if the Province of Ontario does not continue funding for a program/purchase.

12. Dates and Deadlines

Check dates and deadlines. Always keep a calendar of dates and deadlines for important events and anything required to be done by you or the other party.

13. Warranties and Representations

Review and understand warranties and representations given by you and the other party. Don't give any representation if you do not actually know that the representation is true or if the other party is in a better position to know the facts being represented. If you must give warranties, try to limit them as much as possible. For example, a warranty in a deed might say that you warrant title to the property. You can limit the warranty by saying that you warrant title to the property only during the period of time in which you owned the property. Remember that the other party is trying to do the same, so watch for disclaimers or limitations.

14. Rights and Responsibilities

Know all of your rights and responsibilities under the contract. Carefully read the entire contract because rights and responsibilities are typically scattered throughout the agreement.

15. Resolution of Disputes

Determine how you want to deal with resolution of disputes. An arbitration or mediation requirement could ultimately save you lots of time and money. However, there are times when you may need to go to court to resolve the dispute. When appropriate, try to give yourself some flexibility.

16. Force Majeure Clause

The clause aims to provide relief to a party to a contract when an unexpected event occurs that is beyond the party's control, leaving them unable to perform their contractual obligation(s). This is sometimes referred to as an "Act of God" clause or an "excusable delay" clause. There are generally three essential elements to force majeure: (i) it can occur with or without human intervention; (ii) it cannot have reasonably been foreseen by the parties; (iii) it was completely beyond the parties' control and they could not have prevented its consequences.

17. Entering into a Contract

The foregoing is a limited list of general provisions to consider when entering into a contract. The type of transaction that is the basis of the contract, as well as the relative bargaining positions of the parties will dictate the actual terms of the agreement. If you take the time to thoroughly review and negotiate the terms of your contracts before you sign, you should find, in the long run, that it is time well spent.
